City of Durango Adds Translation Tool to Website

Durango, CO: The City of Durango, in supporting equal access to public information, is now utilizing the Google Translate function on the City's website, DurangoGov.org

A Google icon located in the bottom right corner of the website allows visitors to choose from roughly 100 languages. The accuracy of translations varies based on the language and should be considered a rough guide to website content. Some features, files, or items on the City website cannot be translated through Google Translate.

"The City is excited to implement a translation tool for most of our online content," said Acting Communications Manager Mitchell Carter. "Our organization is striving to continuously improve access to important City information among community members and visitors who do not speak or read English."

The City's website has more than 1,000 pages of content and sees a daily average of 1,700 visitors. It is a clearinghouse of information about all City departments, services, programs and projects.
